ASSURANT®

Assurant Solves a TPA's Training Problem and Creates a Key Advantage in the Process.

Here's how Assurant helped one third-party administrator train hundreds of agents more effectively, creating a lasting competitive advantage.

Dealer loyalty is hard to come by in today's competitive market. But that didn't stop one enterprising TPA from taking a fresh approach. They looked beyond traditional agent training for an innovative program that would embed best practices into the culture and create a deeper understanding of new products and effective selling processes.

Old habits are hard to break.

Live training sessions are effective in the moment, but the core messages tend to have a short shelf life. Sales team performance begins to lag almost as soon as the session is over. Even the best staff tends to revert to comfortable, less effective behaviors soon after the training concludes. But for this TPA, breaking old habits was essential to increase F&I results.

Training can be quite an investment.

They also had to figure out how to go head-to-head against larger, better funded competitors that could offer multi-day, instructor-led workshops on a regular basis - a luxury they could not afford. The high cost of time and travel associated with repeat onsite visits was too much to bear, especially when servicing remote dealerships.

Help comes from a trusted partner.

So what did the TPA do? They turned to Assurant. A long-time partner and one of the strongest underwriters in the business, Assurant had a track record for innovative solutions. And their ability to leverage technology platforms and data-driven insights for their clients made them seem like a natural fit to provide a good solution.

A well-trained producer can increase F&I revenue by as much as 70 percent per car.
